Village of Lake Zurich

TEMPORARY SIGNS

- Attention-getting devices are permitted for non-residential uses in the non-residential districts.

- Each establishment may have one freestanding and one wall-mounted attention-getting device installed or mounted simultaneously.

- Attention-getting devices are limited to the following display periods:
    a. When the attention-getting device advertises an event that has a specific start and end time: A total display period of 30 days prior to the start of the event, the time period of the event, and three days following the end of the event.
    b. All other attention-getting device advertises (non-time specific): 30 days.
    c. A maximum of four display periods per year is permitted with a minimum of 30 days between displays.

- Attention-getting devices for multi-tenant sites are subject to the following rules:
    a. The display period and separation period apply to each establishment individually rather than the site as a whole.
    b. For multi-tenant sites, the property owner(s) and/or tenants must coordinate display of attention-getting devices among tenants.

- Freestanding attention-getting devices are subject to the following:
    a. One freestanding attention-getting device is allowed for every 75 feet of street frontage. There must be a 15 foot separation between freestanding attention-getting devices.
    b. Freestanding attention-getting devices are limited to a maximum height of 15 feet and 32 square feet in area.
    c. Freestanding attention-getting devices must be located a minimum of five feet from a lot line, as measured from the outermost portion of the sign. No part of a freestanding attention-getting device may extend over the lot line.

- Wall-mounted attention-getting devices are limited to 32 square feet.
I have read and reviewed these requirements.
